One spooky year ago, there was a man called Luigi. Luigi was a plumber. He lived in a haunted Hotel in the world!

He used to work with his brother Mario until well you will learn that along the way. Luigi hugged a crystal heart, got into his blue dungarees and headed off. All of a sudden, Luigi heard the crash of the computer a huge, transparent ghost came out of it and stole a shiny object.

Luigi was as frightened as an ant getting trampled. He hated ghosts. So, he thought he had to get rid of it for once and for all. Luigi was tiptoeing along the creaking floorboard and screeching stairs. What is going up in there thought Luigi. So he went up. "I will kill you", screamed Luigi. "No I will kill you", said the ghost. Luigi ran around the Hotel as the cold wind was swirling uncomfortably. Chasing the mysterious, menacing ghost. But Luigi gave up chasing the cheeky ghost he was just to slow.

I wish Mario never left me to die. Muddled Luigi as he started to cry. Suddenly, he noticed the object, his most prized possession the divine, crystal heart was stolen by the "evil ghost". So, he had to get his precious crystal heart back. Luigi would do anything to get it back because had it ever since he was a baby. He looked everywhere in the rusty old bathtub, under the rickety, wooden bed and even the disgusting, tin toilet. Luigi was going to become a ghosthunter and search the Haunted Hotel head to toe for any ghosts. Luigi went into the forbidden area where humans die.
